OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

THE ACQUITTAL OF RATCLIFFE.

A painful shock was given to the public confidence in the efficacy of the law to protect right and punish wrong by the announcement, yesterday morning, that the Jury in the case of WILLIAM B. RATCLIFFE, indicted for the murder of DAVID Ross, had, after five hours deliberation, brought in a verdict of "Not Guilty"! The intelligence, as it circulated through our city, was received everywhere with unfeigned astonishment and almost everywhere with unqualified and unsparing condemnation. The zeal and ability of the Counsel for the Defence and a few minor discrepancies in the evidence had led some to doubt whether the Jury could agree upon a verdict; but few, if any, of the interested and attentive thousands who had followed the case through, from its commencement to its close, dreamed of the possibility of the Prisoner's acquittal. The great mass of our community confidently and rightfully expected a verdict of Guilty, and we should be as derelict in our duty, as we think the Jury were in theirs, if we did not pronounce their decision a mockery of Justice.

We understand that when the Jury first went out, they stood 9 to 3 for acquittal, and that the opinion of the minority gradually yielded to the arguments of the majority. We understand, further, that the Jury believed Radcliffe to be guilty of the crime charged, but did not think the evidence established this fact beyond a reasonable doubt. For ourselves, after carefully scanning the whole evidence submitted, after listening to most of the points made by the able Counsel for the Defence, and after weighing the charge of the Judge, we cannot see how it was possible for any twelve right-minded and intelligent men to draw from the facts proved any other conclusion than that Radcliffe was the murderer of Ross.

We do not seek to impugn the motives, or aspserse the character of the Jurors who brought in this strange verdict. We will not believe that they deliberately falsified their oaths. We are reluctant to doubt that they discharged their duty honestly, fearlessly and conscientiously. But we do insist that their judgment was wrong, fatally wrong —not in accordance with the law, or the facts; in violation of the rights of the community, and at war with every principle of justice.

It was thro' no fault of the public Prosecutor, that this unlooked-for result was reached. The case had been most ably and faithfully prepared. The Grand Jury, with praiseworthy diligence, devoted two weeks last year to a most thorough investigation. Deputy Sheriff PAGE was indefatigable in his efforts to get out every particle of evidence that could bring to light the perpetrator of the bloody deed. Mr. District Attorney BUTLER tried the case with consummate skill and had the aid and advice of one of the first Lawyers in the West, E. G. RYAN Esq. Judge RUSSELL, who presided, held the scales of Justice with a firm and impartial hand, explained the law to the Jury fairly and intelligently, and finally committed the case to their hands in a charge which is a model of its kind. To all this the Defence had nothing to oppose but the professional skill and zealous exertions of two eminent Counsel, and the chance of a flaw in the chain of circumstantial evidence produced by the prosecution. And yet this straw has saved the Prisoner! A man whom the whole community believes to be the cold blooded murderer of David Ross, a murderer for money, is let loose upon society, because a Jury of twelve men, presumed to be honest, intelligent and conscientious, set up the possibility of a doubt against the thousand strong, damning, incontrovertible facts proved upon the trial and all pointing to the prisoner as the assassin. A Jury refuse to convict, altho' believing themselves, as everybody believes, the prisoner to be guilty, because they shrink from the responsibility of deciding, as Jurors, what they understand, believe and know as men.

Is it any wonder that the community should be shocked and outraged by such a verdict? Is it any wonder that confidence in the Law should be shaken by such a result? Is it any wonder that faith in the integrity of juries, trust in the administration of Justice, the sense of security in life and property, under the protecting Ægis of the Law, should all be disturbed, when Murder, premeditated, mercenary Murder, thus walks abroad, mockipt of Justice, in our streets, and when the blood of the hapless victim, smoking up to Heaven cries aloud, but cries in vain, for Vengeance upon the Assassin?

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE SENTINEL.

MADISON, March 8, 1852.

Resolutions were this morning introduced by Mr. Van Nostrand, proposing to receive no new business after the 10th, and to meet at an earlier hour in the morning. The former was laid on the table, but the House adopted a resolution by a large majority, agreeing to meet at 9 A. M. In the course of the brief debate on the question, Col. Botkin urged that the House meets now at so early an hour, that some of the members are obliged to occupy the few moments during prayer in folding and directing papers! There was too much truth in the hit.

Mr. Strong, from the select committee to whom was referred a communication, relative to the improvement of the Wisconsin River, and another from the President of the Board of Works, asked that the Committee have power to send for persons, and papers, which was granted. This committee is understood to be making some important investigations, the results of which will appear in due time. As their inquiries seem to have reference to the amount of funds expended on the work of making a navigable connection between the Mississippi and Lake Michigan, in order to ascertain the amount available for the Wisconsin River, it may be that the Assembly will get at the information it desires.

Mr. Lawrence, Chairman of the select committee on the the liquor petitions, reported from the majority, on those petitions, and sundry bills referred to them. They state that the number of petitioners for the Maine Law, thus far are 13,636—remonstrants against it 4778, and petitioners for the unconditional repeal of the license law 1281. (There were 456 more for the Maine law this morning, and 44 against.) The majority report in favor of a bill heretofore presented, providing for a repeal of the present license law. They also report in favor of the passage of a law like that of Maine, but conditioned on its acceptance by the people, the vote to be taken in the fall. Messrs. Earnest and Catton, the minority of the Committee, dissent from the propositions of the majority, and were allowed till Wednesday to make out their report. Considering the vast preponderance of the petitions in favor of the Maine law, the conclusions of the majority of the committee seem to be correct. A direct vote of the people on the question, is the surest way of ascertaining whether such a law would be supported by them after its enactment.

The bill of Mr. Hammett—originally $70—for contesting his seat; passed this morning, after being reduced to $15. As originally introduced it contained, or was based upon, an item of $50 for an Attorney's fee. The House, sitting in committee, in judgment upon this item, adjudged that $25 was sufficient for the service, and so passed the bill.

In committee on the Bank Law, this afternoon, excellent progress was made, sections 17 to 32 inclusive having been gone through with. Most of them passed the committee without amendment. No. 28 was so altered as not to allow the Comptroller to loan the dividends held in trust.—An attempt was made to require him to keep them in the State Treasury, but as it was explained that by depositing them in Bank, a certain interest would accrue, the proposition failed. On the motion of Mr. Cain, a provision was inserted in the 30th section, allowing the banks to withdraw any portion of their securities by depositing an equal amount of their circulating notes, or of specie, with the Comptroller.

The committee rose after having discussed for some time the rate of interest, but without coming to any conclusion. Mr. Hackett's proposition to allow 10 per cent till 1860, and 7 per cent thereafter, seems fair enough, and may carry; altho' many of the members are inclined to put Banks on the same footing as individuals, and leave them to the laws of interest, whatever they are or may be. There was also another amendment adopted which allows the Banks to deposit their notes to make up deficiencies caused by the depreciation of their deposited securities.

Messrs. Hoyt and Cate were the regular opponents to-day of the bill as reported. Somehow, the propositions of the latter are frequently entertained, while the Dr.'s ideas do not generally meet with favor. Perhaps it is because he seems so determined to find a wolf, "with lips turned back and jagged teeth displayed," in every section. To-morrow will probably see the bill through the Committee.

In Senate to-day, Mr. Reed introduced a bill entitled "A bill relating to the feed at the hotels in Madison, and providing for the removal of the Capital to Milwaukee"—or something to that effect.

In the afternoon the Senators had a warm discussion on the Fox River Valley Railroad. It passed through the Committee of the whole, and encountered a strong opposition after coming out. Several sharp speeches were made pro and con, on a motion to strike out the enacting clause. The result is doubtful—the probability being in favor of a failure. We shall see. W. H. W.

THE PRISONER, RADCLIFFE.—After the Jury rendered their verdict in the murder case, yesterday morning, RADCLIFFE was remanded to jail to await his trial on an indictment found against him for Burglary. During the whole of the trial for murder he seemed the most unconcerned and indifferent man in the Court House, and when summoned at half-past 3 o'clock, yesterday morning, to meet the Jury and hear their verdict, no one could have imagined, from his look or demeanor, either before or after the verdict was rendered, that he felt any other interest in the case than that if no idle spectator.

☞ We are requested to state that there will be a meeting of the Sacred Music Society, for rehearsal, at the Hall in Dickerman's Block this evening.

The Mayor'S Inaugural Address.

Gentlemen of the Common Council:

The duties upon which you are about to enter, have been voluntarily assumed by you, as a part of those obligations which every citizen owes to the country or community in which he lives. To you are committed the various and important interests of the city, and much of its future prosperity will depend upon the manner in which you may discharge this trust. To you belong the power of levying and expending the city taxes—of maintaining and supporting an efficient fire department—of ordaining and maintaining proper and wholesome health and police regulations, and generally of promoting according to your best judgment the welfare and prosperity of the whole city. In addition to these general powers and duties, you possess others of a local character, in your respective wards, involving the expenditure of large sums of money, and affecting the interests and rights of a large number of our fellow-citizens.

To discharge these various and important duties satisfactorily to yourselves, or beneficially to the People, will require constant attention and entire devotion to the public good.

As you are about to enter upon the discharge of your duties under a new act of incorporation, I deem it proper to call your attention to some of its most important provisions, many of which differ materially from those contained in the former charter and amendments.

One of your first and most important duties will be the appointing of a City Comptroler for the ensuing year. This is by far the most important and responsible office within the city, and should be filled by a man of tried integrity, ability and experience. This office, filled by such a person, will materially lighten your labors and do much towards restoring the credit and reducing the expenses of the city. There is no act of the present Board, to which the People look with so much interest as to the selection of this office and to them and to you, it will be a source of deep regret hereafter if for personal or political considerations, you should place the powers and responsibilities of this office, in unsafe or unworthy hands.

This is a new office, in our city government, the duties of which have heretofore been discharged by the Aldermen of the several wards, and to the imperfect manner in which they have too often been discharged, we owe much of the embarrassments under which our city now labors—It has been found impossible for Aldermen to devote that time and attention to the duties of their office, which the interests of the city requires, and therefore to take from them some of their most onerous duties, this office has been created. A reference to the provisions of the Charter upon this subject, will show you the various and important acts to be performed by this officer, and the importance of electing one upon whose ability and integrity you can rely—one whose aid and counsel will be useful to us all, in carrying out the provisions of the new and untried Charter. It is especially important that the first Comptroller should, in all respects, be worthy the post, and possess the confidence of the public, as his views and policy will have great influence and weight in moulding and directing the future financial and business policy of the city.—I trust therefore that the hopes of the friends of this measure, will not be disappointed, but that the person you may select will be one in all respects qualified to discharge the duties of the office in such a manner as to promote the best interests of the city.

The surveying for the city and wards has heretofore been under the direction of ward surveyors, who were not accountable to the common council, and who have been in the habit of appropriating to their own use, plans, profiles, and surveys, for the making of which they had been paid by the city or wards. It was therefore deemed advisable by the framers of the present Charter, for the purpose of establishing a uniform system of surveys and grades throughout the city, and of ensuring a greater amount of experience and ability, to have but one surveyor for the city, immediately responsible to the common council, and that his plats, surveys and field notes should be the property of the city. Much injury has been done to the public, as well as individuals, by the loose and imperfect manner in which surveys and grades have heretofore been made and established. It is in your power to remedy the evil by appointing a competent practical surveyor, and by ordinance defining his powers and duties.

It will be your duty at an early day to appoint five commissioners,—one from each ward, whose duty it is by the Charter to cause surveys to be made of the lines and boundaries of all streets, alleys, side walks, wharves and public grounds, within the city, and to cause accurate plots and surveys thereof to be made and filed as required by Sec. 16 of Chap. 10 of the present act of incorporation. It is not supposed that all the work contemplated by this section will be required during the present year, but as permanent grades cannot be established until the new survey is made, it will be necessary to survey such portions of the city as it may be desirable to improve during the present year by the construction of streets and side walks.

I deem it unwise to order the construction of streets and side walks by the owners of real estate, until permanent grades can be established, that the lines and boundaries of such streets and side walks, may be established and defined. I recommend that this commission should be composed of persons who, by their long residence and knowledge of previous surveys and land marks, will be able to facilitate the duties and labors of the surveyor.

It is your duty to designate two daily papers, in which shall be published such ordinances, resolutions and notices, as by the new Charter may be required, to be published in a public newspaper. It is my opinion that this work, comes under the provisions of section one, chapter ten, requiring all work for the City, or either of the Wards, to be let by contract to the lowest bidder. I, therefore, recommend that proposals be invited from the proprietors of the different daily papers in the City, and that the persons to whom the contract shall be given, be required to execute Bonds to the City for the faithful performance of the same.

Provision is made for the appointment of one or more Commissioners to draft and lay before you such ordinances, by-laws, regulations and forms, as may be necessary to carry the Charter into effect, and more fully to define the powers and duties of officers and fix their compensation.

This service should be performed without delay, inasmuch as the ordinances, regulating licenses, defining fire limits, prescribing the limits, paving the compensation of officers and regulating the assessment of taxes, should be immediately adopted and enforced.

Another most important duty is imposed upon you by the provisions of the chapter on finance and taxation, by which you are authorized to fund the floating debt of the city and wards, and to issue city bonds therefor, bearing an interest of seven per cent. To determine when these bonds shall be made payable, you must first ascertain the amount of indebtedness thus to be assumed by the city. The funding of the Ward and City, indebtedness as a measure equally beneficial to the creditors of the city and the city itself. By this means, the creditors will be enabled to know when their demands will be paid, and will receive interest therefor which cannot now be disposed of without sacrifice, bonds of the city, bearing an interest of seven per cent, which in a short time, under prudent management, will be at par, and the city itself will be enabled to maintain its credit; to meet all her liabilities promptly, and at the end of each financial year to redeem all the orders it has issued.

Fears have been expressed with regard to the willingness of the various holders, of City and Ward orders, to accept of the bonds to be issued in pursuance of this chapter. I entertain no doubt but that their own interest will be sufficient without regard to the necessity of the measure, to induce them at an early day to present their orders, that you may be enabled to carry out the provisions of the charter As the charter is formed, no other course is left them, and I entertain no doubt of the authority of the legislature to pass such a law.

I call your attention to the 16th section of the 3d chapter. If the provisions of this section could be carried out, and the revenues of each year be anticipated by temporary loans sufficient to meet the current expenses, a large amount would annually be saved to the Treasury, in the difference between cash payments for labour and services, and the system of issuing orders which has heretofore prevailed.

Provision is made for the licensing of dealers in vinous ardent, and fermented liquors and the amount to be paid therefore is fixed by the charter. It will be your duty to carry this power into effect, by ordinance, and provision should be made for those whose existing licenses under the general law have not yet expired.

The 7th Chapter of the Charter vests in the Aldermen of the several Wards and in the Common Council in case of appeal, uncommon powers in relation to the construction of streets and sidewalks and the making of other Ward and City improvements which if prudently exercised will be of great advantage to the City. It is well known that individuals can at all times perform the work contemplated by this chapter at a much less expense than a corporate body and in a majority of instances you will find that the property holders will cheerfully, if due time be allowed, perform the part assigned to them. But great caution is necessary in the exercise of powers of this kind, and although the provisions of this chapter are to be determined in the first instance by the Aldermen of the several Wards, yet as you have the right, finally to decide upon appeal, I would advise the adoption of some general rule, by which you may control and direct the action of the Ward Officers and afford protection to the property holders As a salutary restraint upon hasty and improident action I would suggest that the assent of a majority in value of the Lot owners upon any street or sidewalk should be first obtained before any order can be made requiring the same to be graded or improved.

I invite your especial attention to the proceedings necessary for the levying and collecting of taxes and to the provisions of the charter upon this subject. It is to be regretted that heretofore the requisitions of law have been so complicated and of the same time so little regarded as to throw doubt over the right of the city to collect and to encourage resistance to the payment of these dues which every citizen ought cheerfully to render to government. The regulations in the present charter are at once so simple and so stringent, that nothing but the culpable negligence of the officers intrusted with he assessing levying and collecting of taxes can prevent the collection of the entire amount imposed both on real and personal property. I would recommend that the legal adviser of the city be directed to assist on these proceedings through all there different stages so as to avoid as far as possible all danger of error.

In the performance of all the various duties, which, by law, devolve upon you, as Aldermen of the several Wards, or as members of the Common Council, a weighty responsibility rests upon you. You enter upon the discharge of these duties, under somewhat peculiar and trying circumstances. You are to construe and give effect to a new charter, differing in many respects, from that under which we have heretofore lived. You find the City in debt—her credit impaired, and the people complaining of the heavy burthens imposed upon them by taxation. You are expected to make provision for the payment of the ward and city indebtedness, to restore the credit of the city, and at the same time to reduce the rate of taxation—all this you can accomplish if you will bring to your aid the same skill and energy that you ordinarily exercise in regulating your own private affairs. In the positions we occupy, we should remember, that we are not acting for ourselves, nor are we the representatives of any political party, but we are the agents and trustees of the twenty-two thousand people who inhabit this city, who have intrusted us with the preservation of their property and the protection of the credit of their municipal government. I think it has been well demonstrated, that the people of Milwaukee do not wish to see political or party considerations connected with the affairs of their city government, and having placed us here independent of these considerations they have the right to expect from us a faithful discharge of the duties imposed upon us.

In conclusion, allow me to say that while our city largely possesses the elements of wealth and prosperity, it is in your power to check or augment them. No city can prosper where its credit is impaired, or where taxation becomes a burthen. They depress industry and enterprize at home, and discourage emigration and the influx of capital from abroad. No body of citizens however skillful or enterprising, can, for a great length of time, resist the paralyzing influence of an ill regulated and extravagant municipal government. It is for you, gentlemen of the Common Council, upon whom, under the auspices of the new Charter, the charge of the city devolves, to see that its government, instead of clogging, shall give additional impetus to the enterprize of our business men, and the general operations of our citizens.

CIRCUIT COURT.

Trial of Wm. Ratcliffe for the Murder of David Ross.

BEFORE JUDGE HUBBELL.

District Attorney Butler and E. G. Ryan for the State.

J. E. Arnold and A. D. Smith for Prisoner.

MONDAY, March 8th.

Mr. A. D. SMITH addressed the Court and Jury on behalf of the prisoner. He said—

Gentlemen—The State of Wisconsin demands at your hands in this case, for the murder of David Ross, the life of the prisoner, W. P. Radcliffe. The law came forth from the Eternal amid the rolling of thunder and the quaking of earth: "Whoso sheddeth man's blood by man shall his blood be shed." Our laws have assumed the power and the prerogative of the Almighty to take away the life of a human being. You are called on by those laws to take away the life of one of your fellow men, and to cut him off in the prime of life from every tie and every bond that made life happy.

Gentlemen, it were easy to die; one gasp—one convulsive struggle, and all is over; oblivion steals over the senses, and the soul, starting from its earthly tenement, wends its way to another world. Yet, gentlemen, tho' it were easy to die—tho' the poor human body may quiver beneath the axe or under the gallows—live but for a second, yet you are called to do more than this—more than to deprive him of life. You are called on to pronounce on human ignominious death. And this, gentlemen, is fearful! aye, fearful indeed! Yes, it were easy to die; but to sit in the condemned cell, and from day to day, from night to night, look forward to the fixed and awful period—to clasp that poor, confiding, broken-hearted wife to his breast—to gaze on those smiling, innocent, unhappy children—to think that he has stamped them with infamy and shame, this is fearful; and this is the consequence of the verdict you are called upon to pronounce. You are told you are not to think of the consequences of your verdict; that you are to regard the prisoner as a block of marble—as though you had not his eternal destiny in your hands. I should be sorry indeed from my heart that you were on that jury if you were such men. You have the right to examine all the facts carefully, accurately, but honestly, on all the facts of this unfortunate man, the prisoner. It never was the design of the law that jurors should steel themselves against every feeling of humanity; but that they should sanctimize, as men, every particular—even the most minute—of the evidence—and weigh it well before they came to the conclusion of their verdict. Gentlemen, you cannot help it, you cannot consider the defendant as a block of marble. The great God will not permit you to do it. You must pause, and feel, and think as men, before you pronounce the fatal word of murder against the prisoner.

"The quality of mercy is not strained;
It droppeth as the gentle rain from heaven
Upon the place beneath: it is twice blessed:
It blesseth him that gives, and him that takes:
'Tis mightiest in the mightiest: it becomes
The throned monarch better than his crown;
His sceptre shows the force of temporal power,
The attribute to awe and majesty
Wherein doth sit the dread and fear of kings:
But mercy is above this sceptered sway,
It is enthroned in the hearts of kings,
It is an attribute of God himself;
And earthly power doth then show likest God's,
When mercy seasons justice."

You are men; you have hearts that can feel and souls that must sympathize, and you have reason and your reason tells you the consequences of the subject you are called on to determine.

Gentlemen, you must have observed during the progress of this trial the unceasing energy with which the defendant has been prosecuted. He has been hunted like a wild beast; the whole force of the State has been engaged to hunt up every and the slightest particle of evidence that could be twisted and turned against him. You will bear in mind after Conover had been called on; he, without the slightest particle of evidence went and swore a warrant against the defendant—from this moment the prosecution commenced and every circumstance that could in any way in the least, throw doubt or mystery on the acts of the defendant has been raked before you—has been published and sent abroad by the daily paper—and the prosecuting Attorney has called on you and told you what the community required at your hands, that you should yield to the wants and sympathies of the community. I would denounce you by the solemn oath you have taken, if you did so. You are bound to render your verdict according to the truth, and nothing else.

And I ask you on your oaths is it? and yet this is one of the most material facts in this case; and when we come to apply the law rule of evidence which must govern you, in your decision, to the proof of that fact, it utterly fails; If the issue of a civil case depended on the proof of such a fact—would you think it sufficiently proven; and yet when the issue of human life depends on it, can you say there was no doubt on your minds as to the proof? Gentlemen that great boon of heaven, human life, cannot be thus lightly taken away.

Again: It is attempted to be proved that Radcliffe the prisoner, was on the ground of the scene of the murder on that evening. How? by circumstantial evidence, by the tracks of boots across the marsh from the place where the body was discovered lying murdered; those tracks, they say, were the tracks of the fleeing murderer—and those foot prints were made by these boots, (Hero Counsel took up the boots of the prisoner which were in evidence,) which Radcliffe wore upon that night. How do they attempt to show this? Mr. Warren goes and takes them; he then measures the circumference; then measures the length; then the breath, and then the size of the heel; puts it all on paper; compares it with the prisoners boot, and the measurement agrees. Another test was this; placing the boots in the foot prints of the track, and comparing the prints of the nails. How much in the circumference of the heel, would an ordinary boot of this size vary from another? not the 1-16th part of an inch. Measuring thus then, can you get the circumference within the 1-16th of an inch? No, it is impossible. Then by putting the boots into the track, which Mr. Warren had measured, and all around which his fingers and thumbs had been, and which of course must have been more or less changed.

[Here considerable confusion was exhibited in Court, in consequence of the breaking of one of the benches on the gallery, and afterlit had subsided, Counsel resumed.]

I was saying that the very effort to press the boot into the foot-prints must have had the effect of obliterating the old prints and making new ones and would lead them to think that they were the original ones. Besides, the soil was clayey and not of sufficient tenacity to hold the impression with exact precision; then the prints were not the ⅛ of an inch in depth, and he would have you believe that the nails in those boots exactly fitted into the nail prints in this clayey soil. The hand of Conover, who made the experiment, was not steady enough—his eye was not keen enough, to set down the boots in those prints so exactly as to accurately ascertain the nail prints in the heel and sole of the boot. The only experiment which would have been satisfactory was to have a model of the foot-print taken, and compared that mould with the boot. But no such thing was done.—Gentlemen, it is all stuff nonsense. You may known puppies on such evidence, but for Gon's sake spare human life.

All shoemakers have a little wheel with cogs in it, which they use for making the holes in the heel into which they drive the nails; And that is the way those nail prints are made in every boot; the same wheel is used with every boot, the same number of nails, the same distance from each other; and yet gentlemen, having the great issue of life on this testimony when the law requires you to have all the facts fully, satisfactorily, and clearly proved, they ask you to find your verdict on such proofs as this. Gentlemen, the testimony of medical men in most cases of this kind, is very doubtful from their proneness to theorize, but in this case there was a great lack of proper industry, a great looseness in the examination of the wounds; their depth—their situation—their extent—all is doubtful as to their shape and character. I went myself for my own satisfaction and made an examination of the wounds. It may not be proper for me to state the result. On the left temple there was a hole in the skull, a complete driving in of the bone, skin and muscle clear into the, brain, and from that it is inferred that it was done by an instrument of this kind.—Dr. Wolcott thinks it could not have been done by an instrument of this kind—he thinks a riveting hammer would have been more likely to produce the wounds. Dr. Hatchard and Dr. Orton think it could; but they think it could be done by a stone hammer.

Now Gentlemen, I have gone over 3 points in this case—and I have shown you, that neither of them is conclusively proved, or established—and yet you are asked to convict; their case then fails on the 1st Rule, that is, that each fact and circumstance from which the conclusion is sought to be drawn is fully and clearly established by positive and direct evidence.

Another circumstance, was the blood upon the vest. And here was a great lack of proof on the part of the prosecution; You believe it was blood, so do I—that is the balance of our opinion. But we don't hang men on the balance of opinion. What proof is there whether these spots were recent or old; they may have got there months before or on Sunday; there is no evidence on that point before the court. But I will tell you what there is before the court; Do you remember that the testimony of all the witnesses go to show that Ratcliff wore a brown overcoat on that night when he went out with Ross. Mrs. Smith said it was buttoned up; that brown over coat was keenly scrutinized and examined next morning by the eagle eyes of Page; White and Conovor, and how in the name of Heaven could 2 spots of blood get on the vest with that overcoat pure and spotless; answer that on your consciences! It went do, Gentlemen No! It won't do!

One more circumstance: the blood upon the boot: Gentlemen, a small spot of what was considered blood, was found upon the sole of the boot, about the size of half-a-dollar; the piece was cut out to submit it to analysis to ascertain whether it was human blood; but, the analysis was not made. That spot was a small round circumscribed spot, as marked and well defined as the circumference as in the centre, as deep and dark at its outer edge as in the centre, and that was presumed to be blood. If blood, how could it have got there; the place where Ross was murdered was all covered with blood; there were too large pools of blood; the body was carried from one pool to another; there were no small pools of the size of a 25 dollar. How could he have set his foot down in a large pool of blood and get a small circumscribed spot like that? The color would gradually diminish in intensity as it approached the edge. The boot might tread on a piece of beef or an egg and leave such a spot—but in a pool of blood, impossible! This circumstance then, falls to the ground.

Next, gentlemen, all the facts must harmonize with each other, and the guilt of the prisoner.—Now the Confession sought to be established is, that Radcliffe was guilty of the murder of David Ross, on the 4th May last, and they come to that conclusion from his having the instrument made, and having blood on his vest. Now, there is an utter want of harmony there. He wore a brown overcoat, buttoned up over his vest. Yet there were spots on the vest, and none on the overcoat—is there not a want of harmony there? Will it be pretended that the overcoat was washed during the night? It was examined by the officers the next morning and found dry.

Then is a great deal of mystery in this matter, which has not been fully investigated; and if so much prejudice had not existed in the minds of the officers in turning every circumstance against the prisoner. But if the investigation had been pursued more generally and fairly, in hunting out the real murderer of David Ross, the officers would have been more successful. The man who went to ——with Ross to purchase the money belt; was not the prisoner; there is no testimony as to who he was; when Ross put on the belt and put his money into it; and when he put his hands on his hips, and made use of the expression to Mrs. Reeves—"I am loaded up;" at that time there was no red flannel lining on the belt. He went to Flemming's—he went around amongst all his drinking friends. Mrs. Reeves did not put it on. There is no testimony of who put it on.—Who then put it on? The man who bought that belt on Saturday, was not the defendant—he was a man with a light florid complexion, with a bushy head, and who kept looking out of the window—as if desirous that his face should not be seen. It was not the Defendant who put the flannel on the belt; it was not Mr. Reeves' but at some of the haunts where he was in the habit of visiting it was put on by some hand unknown to you—whoever put on that flannel knew the purpose for which the belt was required; knew on what part of his person it was to be worn; knew that his money was to be put into it; so did the murderer; for we find the shirt and inner shirt removed to get at it. Yet, altho' no one would have done this at such a time and place, but the man who knew it, was there, and what it contained? Think again, who put on the flannel? we don't know, perhaps it was the man who purchased the belt; with the bushy head; perhaps some of those characters with whom he might have been connected, whose haunts the deceased was in the habit of visiting. On Saturday night it might have been put on; if we could find out the man who purchased the belt, we would know that we had got the man who knew he had money and where it was, and how it was concealed. Gentlemen, you see some other mysterious agency acting in the case besides the defendant. Gentlemen, the circumstances must be conclusive in their nature and tendency. There is no case of circumstantial evidence here sufficient to connect the defendant with the corpus delicti," the actual doing of the crime. In the case of Professor Webster, the remains of the body—the dirk knife covered with tan—the fish hooks to suspend the body, were all found in the defendants apartments. It was proved that they were purchased by him. But more than all, the notes and papers which it was proved Doctor Parkman had on his person, when entering the college, were found on his person—thus connecting him with the corpus delicti.

DAILY SENTINEL.

LETTER ON FLAX CULTURE.

We have been allowed to publish the following letter, extracted from the forthcoming volume of the transactions of the Wisconsin State Agricultural Society, now in press. The letter treats upon Flax, as a safe and profitable crop for the farmer. It is a plain, common sense article, and seems well adapted to this particular crisis in Wisconsin; and coming from a practical man—our present worthy Chief Magistrate, LEONARD J. FARWELL—it will merit, and doubtless receive, the attention of our people, and arouse them to a realising sense of their true and best interests. But to the letter.—Madison Express.

Madison, Feb. 10, 1852.

ALBERT C. INGHAM, Esq.

Corresponding Secretary of the Wisconsin State Agricultural Society:

Having been honored by your request, that I should state my views relative to the introduction into this state, of some new, safe, and staple product, adapted to our soil and climate, I take pleasure in submitting the following suggestions, and hope they may prove of some service to the living interest of the state, in its present embarrassment.

From the information I have derived from others, and from my own observation, I am led to believe that the cultivation of Flax, if adopted as our principal or chief crop, will, at this time, better than anything else, afford us the relief we require,

A good mellow, pulverised soil that would be suitable for Wheat, Corn or Roots, is equally adapted to the healthy growth of Flax, and especially as our new and fresh soil in this state, favorable to its production. The seed should be sown broad-cast, about the first of May; from twenty to thirty-two quarts to the acre, if cultivated for the seed only; if cultivated both for seed and the fibre, one third additional seed should be sown. When sown it should be lightly harrowed or brushed in. In ordinary seasons, it will be fit for harvesting in the month of August, when the seed is entirely and maturely formed, and nearly, if not quite ripened; and may then be secured, by pulling, or cutting close to the ground, and after being bound up in small bundles, can be well stacked in the field, or placed under cover. The plant while growing, is not liable to injury from insects.

In Belgium, Holland and Ireland, I have known as high as thirty bushels of seed produced to the acre; and I know of no reason why our lands may not be equally productive of this crop.

But for illustration, I will suppose we raise fifteen bushels of seed per acre, which should be our lowest average crop, and by a simple calculation, a comparison with the wheat crop, and its relative value will appear.

One bushel of seed will produce two gallons of Linseed Oil, besides the oil cake. The scarcity of seed in this state at present will probably make its average cost for the next two years, about twelve shillings per bushel, and lowest cost one dollar. We have this result:

One acre, 15 bushels,	$15,00
1¼ tons Fibre, $8 per ton (gross)	10,00
	$25,00

Suppose twenty-five bushels per acre are raised which will be a fair crop, and suppose the fibre, instead of being carried away and sold in the rough state, is dressed by the farmer at his leisure, the result will be:

One acre, 25 bushels, at $1,	$25,00
300 lbs. dressed flax, 6 cts. at least,	10,00
	$43,00

This conclusively shows that the crop will be a profitable one to the farmer, even more so than wheat, but this is not all—The effect of making it a staple and general product upon the country, is worthy of special notice;

1st. It will require to be established in almost every township or village, a Flax breaking machine, where the fibre may be sold for cash by the ton.

2d. It will demand the establishment in almost every settled country, of an Oil Mill, where cash will be paid for the seed.

3d. A great variety of Linen fabrics are manufactured from the fibre, and the seed may be converted into oil, food for cattle, and medicinal articles.

4th. It gives the farmer, comparatively a sure and valuable product, that he may always sell at a certain market price for cash, or exchange with the merchant for goods; a staple, that may profitably employ his domestic industry in its manufacture into articles for clothing.

5th. It furnishes to the merchants of other buyers in the country, an important and valuable article of export, in the form of Flax and Linseed Oil.

6th. It gives employment to mechanics and other laborers in our own state, in its preparation for market; and in the two articles of oil and dressed Flax, will make a balance of trade in our favor of a large amount.

Within the next 10 months, the above advantages of this crop may be, in a measure, realised by this state. Ten thousand bushels of seed should, as soon as practicable, be brought here, to be distributed generally among the farmers of the State, at a cost, which would amount to the sum of $15,000. Ten thousand bushels would sow ten thousand acres, which, according to the above average estimate, would produce to the state, in the first year in seed and fibre, in value, $250,000.

During the second year, if we should sow ⅓ of the seed of the first year's crop, at one bushel to the acre, for that year, at the same estimate, there would be produced to the state in seed and fibre, in value, $2,000,000.

Such a result would certainly seem worth securing to the farming interest of this state; and I can not see what should necessarily prevent it, except it be an unwillingness to make the effort.

We have the soil and climate well adapted to this crop, as has been well and successfully demonstrated by actual experiment. We have the farming and mechanical labor already here, to be employed in its cultivation and preparation for market; and we are importing into the State, for our own use, from other States and abroad the very articles that are produced from it, amounting in all, to no inconsiderable sum of money, when we have the facilities, to be not only independent in this respect, but also to produce for exportation. The experience of the farmers in this State, has clearly proved, that the Wheat crop is not always sure; and if a crop, there is not always a good market. Consequently there is now a necessity that, at least, a portion of our energies should be directed to some other agricultural product; and I know of no plan more feasible, or profitable than this. It is a sure crop—comparatively so, at least. It opens and commands, a safe cash market. The crop is raised with as little labor, proportionately, as any other, and it can be easily and cheaply introduced at this time.

Some plan could be adopted by neighborhoods, or perhaps by a general concert of action among the farmers of the State, to procure the seed.—After the first season, then, this difficulty ends; and the crop is introduced into the State—and that it will afterwards become a staple one, I think any person can clearly see.

To show that all this is not mere theory, with experiment or proof, I am permitted to refer to John Galbraith, Esq., of Mukwonago, in the county of Waukesha—who has had more experience in the cultivation of this crop, than any other person in this country; and who is now, and has been for a few years past, engaged in this enterprise, in this state, at the above place.

I am informed, by a letter from him, under date of January 9th last, that—

In 1848, he raised	70	acres,	a good crop.
1849	" 96	"	very fine crop.
1850	" 121	"	dry season, middling crop.
1851	" 108	"	splendid crop.

Mr. Galbraith gives it as his opinion, that this crop is as well adapted to this state, as to any flax growing country abroad; and he has had an intimate acquaintance with those countries, and is capable of judging correctly.

I have examined, with much satisfaction, the flax breaking machine of Messrs. Hatch and Weed, at Beloit, where they purchase the Flax straw by the ton, and it is by them rotted, dressed, and sent to an eastern market. Should the farmers of this country adopt this crop, each use one half the energies in its production, now expended upon wheat, the time is not distant, when many of our cotton Factories will be converted into linen Factories, and linen goods be produced as cheaply, and be made as generally useful as cotton goods.

Recent experiments in Europe and in our own country, leave no longer room for doubt but what flax can be substituted for cotton, and there is a process and patent now in use, by which, in one day from the time the flax is pulled, ripe from the field, it can be prepared, and put in a fit condition for spinning upon any of the Flax, Cotton, Wool or Silk Machinery of the country. We have a direct and vital interest in the cultivation of this product.

Most Respectfully,
Your Obt. Servant,
LEONARD J. FARWELL.

THE HUMAN FRAME

Is the most perfect masterpiece of mechanism in the universe. Every artery, muscle, ligament and bone, exhibits in its formation the wisdom of the Deity. Every joint and sinew works harmoniously with each other, and upon the natural performance of every function depends the healthful action of the whole.

PAIN

Disorganizes the whole system, it prostrates the nerves, it relaxes the muscles, it weakens the joints, it interferes with the functions of every organ, it checks the free and healthy circulation of the blood, it paralizes the absorbents, and renders them unable to take up and replete the wasted form with sound material. From the very moment that the beautiful masterpiece of God becomes afflicted with pain, the influence is experienced throughout the whole system, no matter in what particular locality the pain may originate; whether in the Head, the Feet, the Back, the Knee Joints, the Elbows, the Teeth, the Gums, or the Stomach; whether it arises from internal derangement, or is the result of external injuries, still the pain exercises its influence throughout every portion of the human system—Not a nerve or a muscle escapes its prostrating influence

INSTANT RELIEF FROM PAIN

Is the great desideratum of every individual who suffers its tortures, no matter how slight or severe its paroxysms may be. No one can feel happy while suffering its torments.

The effects of the Ready Relief is to stop the pain immediately, to strengthen the nervous system, and supply the nerves with vitality, energy and vitality, the loss of which is the chief cause of nervous pains.

DANGEROUS PRACTICE.

The use of Morphine, Strychnine, Aconine, Belledonna, Arnica, and other poisons are not only dangerous but criminal. The effect of these poisons is not to cure the disease, or to remove from the system the pains, but to deaden the nerves, to weaken and stop the nervous energy, to paralyze the functions of the nervous system, and to destroy sensation.

If this practice is continued for any length of time, the patient will not only waste away, but the brain will become paralyzed, and the intellect destroyed

RADWAY'S READY RELIEF

IS FREE FROM MORPHINE,

And all other dangerous and narcotic influence. To the weak and paralyzed nervous system it imparts life instead of death, and the patient is left by the healthy influence which Radway's Ready Relief imparts to the nerves, instead of the listless, sleepy and paralyzing effect which Morphine, and all other preparations containing this poison, produces on the system.

TO THE COMPLEXION IT IMPARTS BEAUTY.

By cleansing the skin from all eruptive matter,
Making it smooth and clear, it gives action to the capillaries,
By which all poisonous humors are ejected,—
And a healthy action to the skin restored.
Make the teeth as pipes whiteness and prevents decay,
It makes the skin soft, sweet and smooth,
Transforms the most repulsive and disfigured visage,—
To a clear and beautiful complexion.

RADWAY'S CIRCASSIAN BALM.

Imparts nutriment to the hair,—
Makes it strong, glossy, rich and luxuriant,
Cleanses the scalp from dandruff,—gives action to the bulbs,
Fastens the hair upon the scalp, and forces it to grow—
Like guano to a barren soil, it makes it rich and productive.

To dress the hair, make it smooth and glossy,—
Strong and beautiful, &c.

Radway's Circassian Balm is the "one plus ultra"

THE TRIUMPH, Single oven, takes in long wood, is an excellent stove—one that has been well tested, and given general satisfaction.

The TRIUMPH, No. 1, is different in its construction from any other made, in the arrangement of the flue back—acknowledged to be a great improvement.

The JUNO PARLOR is adapted to either wood or coal, being a fine, handsome stove, and can be recommended to the public, having all the convenience of the stove combined with the beauties of the open grate. It is beautifully ornamented, and is so arranged that it can be used entirely the entire front above and below the grate being opened or closed with three doors, and so arranged that when open they are completely out of sight. It is equally adapted to office, as well as parlor use.

The RADIATOR is the best coal stove ever got up as a radiator of heat.

Persons planning their stoves of us, in the event of any of the plates getting broke, can at all times be supplied with extra ones, thus superseding the necessity of throwing away stoves, while many are daily compelled to do in buying Eastern ware.
